Unlock your students' potential with interscholastic esports. They already love video games. So, give your kids a leg up and open a pathway to tens of millions of dollars in scholarships and a massive industry of potential gaming career paths. But, don't take our word for it. Here's Doug:

"I am not a gamer, but I am an educator, teacher, coach, and principal. Through those lenses, I was able to see the many benefits of esports. I found esports opened a door for students to participate in a school activity that requires teamwork, communication, physical skills, and mental preparation...Connecting students to a school team, grew our school culture. We also found out many of our other student-athletes and
